Observation and Research on Ecological Restoration of Degraded Forests

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to provide observation technology, driving forces and restoration methods to address degraded forests in terms of improving forest sustainability. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Observation technology of degraded forests;
- Structural and functional degradation of forests;
- Degradation mechanisms of natural forests or plantation forests;
- Plant–soil feedback of degraded forests;
- Driving forces of degradation forests at larger scale;
- Restoration or transformation methods of degraded forests;
- Environmental effects of forest degradation or restoration;
- New technologies and methods for forest ecological restoration;
- Climate adapted reforestation for ecological restoration of degraded forests.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), Ei Compendex, GEOBASE, PubAg, AGRIS, PaperChem, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q2 (Forestry) / CiteScore - Q1 (Forestry)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 16.8 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.5 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the second half of 2025).
