Special Issue

Tree Pollen and Floral Biology

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue seeks experimental and field studies or modeling approaches of any aspect related to tree pollen and floral biology. Relevant topics include: aeropalynological monitoring, modeling, and trends; growth and yield modeling based on pollen and floral phenology; remote sensing studies for mapping and predicting flower phenology; effects of abiotic or biotic factors such as climate change and pollution on pollen and floral development, including inter- and intraspecific variation; floral bud induction, floral development, and its regulators; pollen–styles interaction and male sterility; physiological, biochemical, genetic, and metabolic studies; pollen formation, production, morphology, fertility, allergenicity, and chemical composition.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.
