

Special Issue

Ecosystem Services and the Forest Economy

Message from the Guest Editors

Forests are routinely valued for the limited number of market commodities they provide—mostly timber. A growing recognition of the vital role that forests play in sustaining life and well-being, as well as the economy, is driving many changes to policy, ownership, and management of forests. The focus of this Special Issue of Forests is the forest economy and its connection to ecosystem services. We welcome submissions that broadly engage with the question of forests and the value of ecosystem services. Examples include understanding the effectiveness of policy and programmatic initiatives, the role of market forces, and the assessment of economic–ecological tradeoffs in a working forest context.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.
