Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

We invite contributors to examine the ways in which traumas (individual or group, and affecting humans and non-humans) that occurred in past generations reverberate into the present, and how individuals, communities, and nations respond to and address those traumas. We also invite exploration of contemporary traumas, how they reflect ancestral traumas, and how they are being addressed through drawing on both contemporary and ancestral healing approaches. We define trauma broadly, including removal from homelands, ecocide, genocide, sexual or gendered violence, institutionalized and direct racism, incarceration, and exploitation, and across a wide range of spatial (home to nation) and temporal (intergenerational/ancestral and contemporary) scales. We invite scholars from across disciplines (including ethnic studies, genetics, political science, law, environmental policy, public health, humanities, etc.) to consider trauma and its ramifications alongside diverse mechanisms of healing and/or rearticulating self, community, and nation.

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy provides a venue for cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical methods to examine other historical processes (include migration histories, social identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. Various genres, such as specialized research articles, reviews, communications and other creative projects, are welcomed. Manuscripts containing original, creative research ideas are especially appreciated. All papers will be peer-reviewed promptly. On behalf of the distinguished members of the editorial board, we extend our welcome to all researchers working on these subjects to contribute to Genealogy.
