Journeyalogy: Other-stories and counter-mappings of migration

Message from the Guest Editors

We welcome work that interrogates dominant frameworks, explores silenced stories, and opens up new spaces for thinking about migration journeys in the context of genealogy. Possible Topics may include:

- How narratives of migration are constructed, circulated, contested, and resisted across generations in the context of genealogy;
- How maps and counter-mapping can become narrative tools to resist and reframe dominant stories (and histories) of migration;
- Migratory journeys as key elements of identity and belonging, often across generations;
- Engagement with decolonial, anticolonial, Indigenous, or anti-methodologies to rethink research and representation of migration journeys;
- Creative, artistic, and experimental storytelling about migratory journeys, including multilingual approaches;
- Ethical challenges in researching and representing migrant lives, including questions of voice, authority, translation, and consent;
- Silences, omissions, and erasures in dominant migration narratives;
- How migrant communities themselves narrate home, belonging, displacement, and return;
- Researcher positionality and co-production of knowledge in migration research.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
