

Special Issue

Resettling Histories: Hmong Migrations and Identity Beyond Borders

Message from the Guest Editor

Beyond historical reconstruction, this Special Issue engages with contemporary debates on diaspora, transnationalism, and cultural preservation. It highlights how Hmong communities negotiate language, religion, and intergenerational identity in host societies, offering insights that complicate conventional models of assimilation. By incorporating interdisciplinary approaches and prioritizing community-centered narratives, this Issue will enrich the existing literature and challenge dominant paradigms in migration studies. In doing so, it will not only fill critical gaps in scholarship but also provide a platform for dialogue on the enduring legacies of displacement and the dynamic processes of cultural continuity and change.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
