

Special Issue

Race, Gender, and the Moral State: Cross-Cultural and Interdisciplinary Perspectives

Message from the Guest Editor

The purpose of this Special Issue is fourfold:

- To foster a deeper theoretical understanding of the moral state's role in constructing and maintaining racial and gender norms.
- To empirically investigate diverse manifestations and consequences of moral governance practices concerning race and gender across global contexts.
- To encourage interdisciplinary and cross-cultural dialogues illuminating similarities, divergences, and complexities in how states morally regulate and respond to race and gender.
- To explore how marginalized racial and gender groups, across diverse social contexts, interact with, negotiate, and resist state power and its associated moral regimes.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
