

Special Issue

Global Black Movements

Message from the Guest Editor

Dear colleagues, This special issue on global black movements attempts to explain and assess the global social and political movements in Africa, the Caribbean, Europe, and the Americas through a 200+ year period – from the revolutions of the end of the 18th century (including the Haitian revolution) to modern 20th and 21st century political, social and cultural movements in the black diaspora. This special issue will also address not only the forms these movements assumed, but their theoretical and programmatic bases, racial and ethnic social formations, variations in type and consequences or outcomes, and the contexts in which they arose. we invite submissions that interrogate topics including but not limited to the following broad subject areas:

- The pan-Africanist movement
- The Garvey movement (UNIA)
- Black feminist internationalists
- The anti-apartheid movement
- Black Marxism
- The Caribbean black power movement;
- Black Lives Matter
- Afro-Latincultural movements in South America and the Caribbean
- Black nationalism
- Black movements and individual protest in Sport
- Black separatism

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
