

Special Issue

Bounding Ethnic Communities: Immigrant Cultural and Economic Integrations throughout History

Message from the Guest Editors

The purpose of this Special Issue is to examine challenges affecting areas in the city and countryside that have concentrated populations of a particular ethnic background. Articles in this Special Issue are divided into two main groups, the first focusing essentially on ethnic communities in rural areas, while the second group of papers is focusing on the ethnic enclaves located in urban regions. The papers clustered in these two groups are expected to illustrate the role of globalization and political change in the transformation and resurgence of communities where ethnic minorities have placed their imprint on the landscape. The scope of this Special Issue is to document the main ideas pertinent to migration and diaspora, historical and colonial trauma, ethnicity, nationality and citizenship, nationalism, national identity, indigenous communities, ethnic neighborhoods around the world, and local heritage studies (e.g., heritage events, carnivals, exhibitions of local artefacts, local and community museums, local archives, etc.).

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
