

Special Issue

Genealogies of Healing: Black, Indigenous, and People of Color Stories, Studies and Strategies of Resistance and Transformation

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite contributions to this special issue which we hope will be a living memorial of hope stories, a survival manual for uncertain times, and a resource for future generations of scholars, educators, activists, practitioners, artists and innovators. Topics may include but are not limited to the following:

- Examples of mutual aid embedded within cultural practices/worldviews/histories.
- Examples of successful community organizing strategies and/or social movements.
- Descriptions of culture-centered health, mental health, educational interventions.
- Disruptions to what is “legible”/“acceptable” mainstream narrative/knowledge.
- Descriptions of culture-centered approaches to research design that disrupt the problem-focus of research and highlight well-being, innovations, ingenuity, and reinventions/remixes for current times.

We provide free publication for all authors who submit to this special issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.
