

Special Issue

Soil Geochemistry

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on examining the chemical characteristics of soil and the processes that influence the distribution and concentration of various elements and compounds across different types of global soils. Key themes include understanding soil formation processes, soil fertility, the relationship between soil and sediment in a watershed context, the impact of geology and geomorphology on soil properties, soil erosion, soil evolution, soil contaminants, and any aspects of soil science that offer insights into environmental changes and land management. This knowledge is essential for sustainable development and environmental conservation.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Understanding the Earth's origin and its bio-geological evolution, the multiple implications of the geosciences (as a coherent set of interconnected disciplines), and the sociocultural and ethical interdisciplinary approaches, will be crucial for a better understanding of Nature, and also for undertaking scientifically based political decisions.

We are committed to drive Geosciences to a position in which it is recognized for its high-quality, cutting-edge research and scientific influence, and strongly encourage and invite your participation and manuscripts.

Editor-in-Chief
