

Special Issue

Implications for Healthcare Policy and Management

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite submissions to our Special Issue entitled "Implications for Healthcare Policy and Management". The problems frequently encountered in healthcare stem from shortcomings found in policies and management at all levels within healthcare systems. Recommendations by specialists in addressing the healthcare workforce crisis encompass interconnected strategies, policies, collaborative efforts based on solidarity, reforms in skill mixing, measures for equity, global initiatives, and, importantly, a robust government commitment. Furthermore, various specific policy solutions should be examined, including the displacement of healthcare professionals into the workforce and preparing the healthcare workforce to tackle the effects of a new pandemic. This Special Issue aims to explore the evolution of healthcare policies and management in modern healthcare systems. We look forward to receiving your contributions.
