

Special Issue

Physiotherapy and Rehabilitation of Musculoskeletal Disorders

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to announce the launch of a new Special Issue entitled “Physiotherapy and Rehabilitation of Musculoskeletal Disorders” covering body parts such as the neck, chest, upper arm, forearm, hand, lumbar, pelvic girdle, thigh, lower leg, and foot, and the joints and articulations that connect them, including the shoulders, elbows, wrists, hips, knees, and ankle joints. The issue includes evaluating and treating disorders and trauma in the body parts listed above and soft tissues, such as muscles, ligaments, etc., that affect joint stability, mobility, and pain. This Special Issue will focus on exercise therapy and physiotherapy, including manual therapy, physical agents, and mechanical modalities for disorders and trauma in these areas, and assistive technology, including assistive, adaptive, orthotic, protective, supportive, and prosthetic devices and equipment. We also welcome manuscripts related to physiotherapy, rehabilitation care, and preventive interventions for injured people, athletes, those born with congenital disabilities, and people with acute and chronic pain in the musculoskeletal system.
