Health Services in the Care of Older Patients with Chronic Diseases

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to compile studies assessing the role of geriatric services in clinically managing and preventing chronic diseases, prioritising research based on the following themes:

- Clinical health promotion in the care of older adults living with chronic diseases.
- Role of geriatric care in the long-term management of chronic diseases.
- Palliative care for older adults with chronic diseases.
- Interprofessional collaboration in the geriatric management of chronic diseases.
- The role of integrated care in chronic disease prevention and management.
- Challenges and adaptation of healthcare services for chronic disease prevention and management during climate change and disasters.

We are accepting literature reviews, primary research, and secondary data analyses that demonstrate methodological rigour. We look forward to receiving your submissions.
