

Special Issue

Menopause Transition and Postmenopausal Health

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to invite you to submit your work to this Special Issue on the menopause transition and postmenopausal health. Women may experience a variety of health issues as they go through menopause and after menopause. These issues could impact their health status and lifespan. This Special Issue aims to publish work relevant to the health issues of women during the menopause transition and after menopause. Original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following: observations, interventional studies on prevention or treatment, clinical and health care, research methods, concept development, and feasibility studies. I look forward to receiving your contributions.
