Importance of Empathy in Healthcare

Message from the Guest Editor

This Healthcare Special Issue seeks commentary, original research, short reports, and reviews on the challenges health systems face regarding empathy. This Special Issue aims to recommend necessary changes in health policies, systems, and environments to improve empathy as well as user care. Some of these changes, such as increasing access to care, improving its quality, and analyzing variables that can serve to improve empathy towards patients, will undoubtedly improve the health system. Health policy specialists, policymakers, and elected officials are expected to use this Special Issue as a resource for writing smart and forward-thinking health care policies.
