Special Issue

Advances and Innovations in Nursing: Emerging Evidence, Practice, and Future Directions

Message from the Guest Editors

Advanced nursing practice is key for innovation and quality in complex healthcare. Evidence-based practice and timely decision-making underscore the need for advanced expertise, strong education, and high competence. We invite contributions of evidence-based perspectives, research, and scientific results on advanced nursing practice. Submissions on its importance, care models, educational strategies, and policies promoting innovation are welcome. This Special Issue will showcase high-quality research, international perspectives, trends, and future directions. Original research and reviews are welcome. Areas include:

-   Systematic reviews on advanced nursing practice implementation;
-   Epidemiological studies on care approaches;
-   Studies on health professionals' education;
-   Investigations into nurses' competencies;
-   Innovations in health promotion;
-   Future directions.

We look forward to your contributions.
