

Special Issue

Medical Management of Glaucoma

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims to collect articles on new hypotonic therapies for glaucoma both in drops and with new methods of administration, but also new medical therapies of neuroprotection and neuromodulation. Articles on protocols and treatment guidelines and articles on personalized and precision medicine in glaucoma are also welcome. Furthermore, the aim is to provide suggestions on new medical options to be developed and implemented to promote the quality of life and maintain visual function in glaucoma patients. In this Special Issue, original research articles, reviews and meta-analyses of existing or under the study of medical therapies are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- medical topical therapy;
- slow-release device;
- neuroprotection;
- neuromodulation;
- precision medicine;
- quality of life;
- glaucoma-related ocular surface disease.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
