Psychological Health and Social Wellbeing Among Older Adults

Message from the Guest Editor

We welcome contributions that explore various aspects of Psychological Health and Social Wellbeing among Older Adults. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Theoretical frameworks for integrating the concept of psychological health and social wellbeing;
- Novel assessment tools or the validation of existing ones in order to evaluate living conditions and arrangements, productive and other contributions to society, social protection, and healthcare needs;
- Innovative interventions to promote psychological health and social engagement and wellbeing in later life;
- The role of technology in enhancing Psychological Health and Social Wellbeing among Older Adults;
- The environmental impact on the psychological health and social wellbeing of older adults and their caregivers;
- The cultural and societal factors that influence psychological health and social wellbeing during the later stages of life.

Original research from diverse academic disciplines, such as psychology, sociology, gerontology, social work, environmental health, health economics and public health, are encouraged.
