Special Issue

Urgent and Acute Prehospital Care

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue seeks to illuminate the breadth and sophistication of clinical care provided to patients beforetheir access to and in partnership with primary, secondary, and tertiary care services. The Special Issue will feature original research, reviews, and short reports reflecting the diversity of prehospital urgent and acute care provided byhealthcare providers with a range of professionalbackgrounds. Of particular interest would be papers in, butnot limited to, the areas of assessment and management of patients in the prehospital phase of care across the agespan from birth to older age, during pregnancy, those with mental health needs, and vulnerable individuals. Papers may consider emergency and acute care, as well as urgentcare interventions, be that trauma, surgical, medical or mental health. We would also be interested in papersconsidering nonclinical aspects of prehospital care such asmultiprofessional working, the education of prehospitalclinicians, and legal aspects of prehospital practice.
