Radiology-Driven Projects: Science, Networks, and Healthcare

Message from the Collection Editor

This Special Issue of Healthcare is dedicated to offering an overview of these activities. Topics which will be included include (1) teleradiological networks; (2) population-based MR imaging projects; (3) screening programs making use of imaging, e.g., for patients at high risk of breast cancer and lung cancer screening programs; (4) networks making use of CT to care for patients with stroke and other diseases; (5) imaging used in other branches of science; (6) international research networks. Groups from all specialties are encouraged to submit original research, project reports, short reports, reviews, and opinion papers.
