Nutrient Management: Optimizing Yield and Sustainability in Horticultural Crops

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue, entitled "Nutrient Management: Optimizing Yield and Sustainability in Horticultural Crops" is to emphasize the importance of plant nutrition and its impact on horticultural crops, as well as the application of biotic and abiotic stresses for greater agroecosystem sustainability. We invite all researchers working in these areas to submit their contributions for this Special Issue, which will undoubtedly enhance the knowledge of agricultural production. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Plant nutrition and plant stress;
- Nutrition and plant health;
- Organic and inorganic fertilization and agricultural sustainability;
- Macro- and micronutrients in biosimulation for crop yields.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Horticultural plants and their products provide sustenance, health, and beauty. A confluence of factors is putting increasing pressure on horticultural production to evolve, and innovative research is addressing these challenges. Horticulturae provides a venue to communicate research results in a rapid manner with open access, allowing everyone the opportunity to stay abreast of leading research addressing horticulture. I invite you to consider publishing the results of your research in this high quality, peer-reviewed journal.
