Global Antiracism

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue welcomes contributions on global antiracism that examine the global reach and currency of anti-racist discourses. What does it mean to conceptualize race/racism on a global scale? What are the political dynamics presupposed in pursuing an anti-racist agenda? If racial supremacy is the problem, who is the enemy (white supremacy, sovereign settlers, anti-Blacks, antisemites, Islamophobes, among many others)? Who defines race and racial violence? To what extent are anti-racist projects necessarily and irremediably entangled with the forces of global capitalism and settler-colonial logic? In what ways does racism exceed these forces? Does a global perspective on anti-racism open new ways to transform the social coordinates of our racial existence and foster crossracial solidarities? Conversely, does such an approach risk diluting the specificities of a given, local anti-racist struggle? In sum, what does thinking anti-racism globally open up or foreclose? Topics of interest include Black Lives Matter, anti-blackness and the a

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

We welcome contributions that address fundamental issues in the Humanities from any meaningful perspective, combining past and present concerns in order to blaze a path toward the future. Interdisciplinary approaches are particularly welcome. All submissions will be critically reviewed by peers, aiming for the highest possible scholarly level. Being an online journal, the published papers will reach their desired audiences faster, more reliably, and much more easily than traditional print versions, while upholding the same, if not even higher, scholarly standards.
