

Special Issue

Social Memory: The Poetics and Politics of Remembering and Forgetting

Message from the Guest Editors

The open access journal Humanities is planning a focused Special Issue on “Social Memory” in accordance with its scope and aims. Memory matters. Memory is story. The long-term communal understanding of the dynamics of a social/cultural change following a crisis and the transmission of pertinent collective experience constitutes what is called “social memory”. In times of a claimed crisis of memory, the need for an interdisciplinary approach to study the poetics and politics of memory as well as its social dynamics, ideological, methodological, and theoretical intersections in humanities and social sciences is crucial. To consider the social memory of relevant and significant events that lays ground for experiential knowledge becomes essential as societies, who once experienced a collective vulnerability, anticipate social or ecological resilience, a return to a normal and effective life condition, and an optimistic and positive move towards recovery from the crisis.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

We welcome contributions that address fundamental issues in the Humanities from any meaningful perspective, combining past and present concerns in order to blaze a path toward the future. Interdisciplinary approaches are particularly welcome. All submissions will be critically reviewed by peers, aiming for the highest possible scholarly level. Being an online journal, the published papers will reach their desired audiences faster, more reliably, and much more easily than traditional print versions, while upholding the same, if not even higher, scholarly standards.
