

Special Issue

Food, Public Health and Global Justice in Times of Crisis

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue, titled “Food, Public Health and Global Justice in Times of Crisis”, contributes to an urgent global conversation on the right to healthy, sustainable, and equitable food. It invites original research, analytical studies, and systematic experiences that explore the complex interrelation between food systems and population health, how food impacts public health, and the role of transformative public policies, community-driven practices, and innovative solutions.

The International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health calls for submissions addressing the following themes: Food and Nutritional Security, Food Safety and Toxicology, Nutrition and Chronic Disease, Public Policy and Food Law and Environmental and Climate Impact.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Addressing the environmental and public health challenges requires engagement and collaboration among clinicians and public health researchers. Scientific discoveries and advances in this research field play a critical role in providing a rational basis for informed decision-making toward control and prevention of human diseases, especially the illnesses that are induced from environmental exposure to health hazards.

IJERPH provides a forum for discussion of discoveries and knowledge in these multidisciplinary fields. Please consider publishing your research in this high quality peer-reviewed journal.
