Dental Treatment and Dental Health in Special Care Patients

Message from the Guest Editor

There are several purposes of this Special Issue ((DENTAL TREATMENT AND DENTAL HEALTH IN SPECIAL PATIENTS). Through the vision provided by the different articles, we hope to offer the professional an updated vision of:

- Oral health conditions of patients with special needs and oral and craniofacial manifestations related to underlying diseases. Including epidemiological studies, systematic reviews, and meta-analyses;
- Protocols of oral care and dental management for different groups;
- The planning of oral care for special patients in the context of Public Health;
- Dental care for patients with special needs with auxiliary means (sedation, general anesthesia).

Treating the oral health of special needs patients contributes to improvements in the quality of life of these people and their families.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Addressing the environmental and public health challenges requires engagement and collaboration among clinicians and public health researchers. Scientific discoveries and advances in this research field play a critical role in providing a rational basis for informed decision-making toward control and prevention of human diseases, especially the illnesses that are induced from environmental exposure to health hazards.

IJERPH provides a forum for discussion of discoveries and knowledge in these multidisciplinary fields. Please consider publishing your research in this high quality peer-reviewed journal.
