

Special Issue

Health Impacts of Resource Insecurity on Vulnerable Populations

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, we aim to bring together papers focusing on the social and health consequences of resource insecurity, the co-occurrence of either food, water, energy, and/or housing insecurity, and exploring sustainable solutions. We are seeking empirical research or conceptual/theoretical works which examine the relevant processes and issues, including, but not limited to, the following:

- Climate change and resource insecurities;
- Sustainable development goals and resource insecurities;
- Sustainable adaptations to changing resource security environments;
- Systemic barriers and increased vulnerabilities to resource insecurities.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Addressing the environmental and public health challenges requires engagement and collaboration among clinicians and public health researchers. Scientific discoveries and advances in this research field play a critical role in providing a rational basis for informed decision-making toward control and prevention of human diseases, especially the illnesses that are induced from environmental exposure to health hazards.

IJERPH provides a forum for discussion of discoveries and knowledge in these multidisciplinary fields. Please consider publishing your research in this high quality peer-reviewed journal.
