

Special Issue

Chemical Exposures and Public Health Interventions

Message from the Guest Editors

This special issue of International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health (IJERPH) focuses on the assessment of chemical incident exposures and public health interventions. We welcome papers from scientists, practitioners and policy makers dealing with novel and emerging chemical risks, the impacts of chemical incidents, mechanisms of exposure, uptake, harm, public health interventions (operational and policy-based), emergency (prehospital) interventions (e.g. decontamination) and cost benefit/health economic analyses of interventions. Other manuscript types accepted include methodological papers (in vitro, in vivo and ex vivo), position papers, brief reports, and commentaries.

Keywords:

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Addressing the environmental and public health challenges requires engagement and collaboration among clinicians and public health researchers. Scientific discoveries and advances in this research field play a critical role in providing a rational basis for informed decision-making toward control and prevention of human diseases, especially the illnesses that are induced from environmental exposure to health hazards.

IJERPH provides a forum for discussion of discoveries and knowledge in these multidisciplinary fields. Please consider publishing your research in this high quality peer-reviewed journal.
