

Special Issue

Research in Clinical and Health Contexts

Message from the Guest Editors

Health promotion allows people to have greater control of their own health. It covers a wide range of social and environmental interventions aimed at benefit and protect individual health and quality of life through the prevention and solution of the root causes of public health problems. In this line, the effective adaptation of the current models of health intervention is required, in order to adapt attention to health needs and optimize available psycho-socio-sanitary resources. Because of the important impact of this research, we are delighted to invited you to submit papers to be presented at the Congress (<http://www.ciccs.es/>, www.ciise.es and www.congresocice.es), for publication in IJERPH (Impact Factor 2.468). This Special Issue will be guest edited by Dr. María del Carmen Pérez Fuentes. Manuscripts should be submitted by 15 November 2020. See the Special Issue website for further details and submission instructions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Addressing the environmental and public health challenges requires engagement and collaboration among clinicians and public health researchers. Scientific discoveries and advances in this research field play a critical role in providing a rational basis for informed decision-making toward control and prevention of human diseases, especially the illnesses that are induced from environmental exposure to health hazards.

IJERPH provides a forum for discussion of discoveries and knowledge in these multidisciplinary fields. Please consider publishing your research in this high quality peer-reviewed journal.
