

Special Issue

Mobility and Geosocial Networks

Message from the Guest Editors

Mobility and social networks are two key ingredients of human behavior. In our Special Issue, we expect papers that will respond to the continuous evolution of the internet and web 2.0 technologies which facilitate the creation of dynamic content. There are many areas where mobility and geosocial networks improve and refine existing solutions. One of them is geodesign, which works with social media geographic information (SMGI). In fact, authoritative information provided by national mapping organizations dealing with space and themes is extended by the time aspect and especially the user and their preferences, which can be communicated through information media via texts, images, audio, and video.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The ISPRS International Journal of Geo-Information invites you to submit research articles, reviews, and reports covering topics of the whole domain of geo-information. Although the journal was only founded in 2012, it has already achieved wide recognition in the scientific community. We are proud that since April 2015, our journal is indexed by the SCIE of the Web of Science. As Editor-in-Chief, I encourage you to consider IJGI for your scientific papers and would be pleased to welcome you as authors.
