Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue will follow the 9th European Spores Conference, which will be held in Naples, Italy, on 15–17 April 2020 (www.sporesconference.org). Selected topics from those presented at the conference will be the core of this Special Issue on “Bacterial Spores”, focused on basic and applied research on spore-forming bacteria, mainly belonging to the Bacillus and Clostridium genera.

Based on these considerations, this Special Issue will gather papers from a number of leading scientists in the field, which is a very active area of basic microbiology research with a strong impact on applied sciences, ranging from health to food safety to bioremediation.
