The aim of this Special Issue "Genome Organization in Interphase Chromosomes " is to consider contemporary data on the full-genome analysis of the genetic organization of chromosome structures, nucleosome distribution, further characterization of chromatin states in different chromatin models, relations of chromatin states with genes, protein complexes regulating transcription and replication in the genome, protein complexes regulating chromatin remodeling, the ability of enhancers to stimulate promoters over long distances and enhancer–promoter interactions only within such domains, as well as the relationship of topologically associated domains (TADs) with chromosome structures and gene/protein complexes.

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
