Protein structural dynamics is intimately related to protein functions. Structure biology demands high-resolution structures primarily coming from X-ray crystallography. However, the crystal structure does not always give a comprehensive understanding of the functional mechanism. The Special Issue "Protein Structure Dynamics and Function" is a continuation of the successful 2018 and 2019 issue "Protein Structural Dynamics." This issue also aims to present contemporary research on protein structural dynamics, which may include original articles covering technical development, experimental reports on some particular proteins, and theoretical research, as well as review papers relating to the topic.

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry & Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Inorganic Chemistry)
