Bioactive Lipids and Cannabinoids: Key Players in Neuropsychiatric Disorders and Beyond

Message from the Guest Editors

Our body possesses different endogenous signaling systems based on bioactive lipids of which the most investigated class is composed of endocannabinoids (eCBs), known as the endocannabinoid system (ECS).

Compelling evidence shows that ECS play a critical role in various developmental processes and brain disorders. While cannabis has an extremely bright future for therapeutic applications, it is not a miracle drug. Phytocannabinoids have been used in medicine for centuries, and over the past decade, the focus has been on their broad therapeutic potential, particularly in seizure management.

The objective of this Special Issue collection is to bring together relevant international researchers from the lipidomics and cannabinoid field to put together an international collection of well-informed opinions, perspectives, and original research articles that evaluate bioactive lipids and cannabinoid compounds in health and disease state.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
