Cutting-Edge Advances in Natural Bioactive Compounds

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Natural bioactive compounds, sourced from plants, marine organisms, and microorganisms, have been at the forefront of scientific research due to their diverse range of biological activities and potential applications across various fields. In recent decades, scientific advancements have highlighted the important role of natural bioactive compounds in health and disease. Many natural bioactive compounds have demonstrated potential as preventive and therapeutic agents for a wide range of human diseases. As a result, natural bioactive compound-based research is driving innovation in pharmaceuticals, nutraceuticals, cosmetics, and agri-food. This Special Issue aims to highlight the latest advances in the field of natural bioactive compounds, from basic research to innovative advanced applications.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore
- Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
