Extracellular Vesicles: Functions and Therapeutic Applications

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this International Journal of Molecular Sciences Special Issue is to explore the therapeutic potential of extracellular vesicles released by various cells in normal and diseased condition. Tissue-specific extracellular vesicles are known for their unique targeted cell-specific communication. The aim of this Special Issue is to explore the novel mechanism underlying exosome treatment in various diseases. To explore the underlying mechanism involved in exosome treatment, molecular mechanisms and cell-to-cell communication will help to bridge the gap between basic science and clinical set-ups, fostering innovative approaches for the diagnosis and management of various diseases.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
