Bone Marrow Concentrate: New Molecular Research

Message from the Guest Editor

Bone Marrow Aspirate Concentrate (BMAC) therapies have been employed for more than 30 years to treat pathologies across a multitude of medical fields. The use of autologous BMAC biological formulations has resulted in considerable interest and discussions. This Special Issue welcomes and encourages the submission of research articles and full reviews providing insight and information on the latest developments in BMAC molecular research, patient outcomes for musculoskeletal and spine diseases, as well as new applications of BMAC such as in fertility diseases, neuroinflammation, and degenerative diseases.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
