(Di)electrical and Catalytic Functionality in Advanced (Bio)materials: Synthesis and Structure–Properties Investigation

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite you to contribute to this Special Issue of MDPI's International Journal of Molecular Science, named "(Di)electrical and Catalytic Functionality in Advanced (Bio)materials: Synthesis and Structure–Properties Investigation". This Special Issue welcomes novel manuscripts dealing with previously unpublished advances in the following areas:

- Design of novel advance (bio)-based materials/systems followed by their optimized preparation techniques (e.g., using green methods along with post-processing);
- Use of conventional and advanced characterization techniques (alone or in combination) and monitoring (in situ/operando) of (micro)structural characteristics under steady or variable conditions (frequency, temperature, atmosphere, substrate etc.) that have a significant influence on the final properties (thermal, (di)electrical, catalytic, mechanochemical, and other (in)directly influenced by structural modifications and compositions) and structure–properties correlations;
- Application and compatibility studies: implementation of prepared advanced (bio)materials in target application areas (e.g., catalysis, sensors, battery components, etc.)

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
