Molecular Mechanism of Alzheimer's Disease III

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue is the third volume of our previous Special Issue "Molecular Mechanism of Alzheimer's Disease" and "Molecular Mechanism of Alzheimer's Disease II". Alzheimer's disease (AD) is an age-related neurological disease that affects tens of millions of people and their carers worldwide. Hallmark features of AD include plaques composed of amyloid beta, as well as neurofibrillary tangles of tau protein. However, despite more than a century of research, the cause of AD remains inconclusive. The roles of amyloid beta and tau are being investigated, and other causes of AD are now under consideration. The contributions of researchers, model organisms, and various hypotheses will be examined in this Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
