Molecular Biology of Age-Related Macular Degeneration (AMD) 2.0

Message from the Guest Editors

AMD is a complex disease that is associated with aging and several genetic and environmental risk factors. Cellular reaction to oxidative stress, senescence, autophagy, inflammatory response, and DNA damage reaction are frequently reported to be impaired in AMD, but causative relationships between AMD and these effects are not completely clear. Therefore, studies on the molecular mechanisms of AMD pathogenesis are justified and can bring results important regarding its biology and therapy. This Special Issue welcomes both original papers and review articles addressing one or several of the abovementioned issues, or of the topics mentioned in the keywords listed below.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
