Molecular Issues in Optic Neuropathy

Message from the Guest Editor

Optic neuropathies encompass a group of disorders characterized by damage to the optic nerve, leading to visual impairment or loss. Recent advancements in research have paved the way for innovative diagnostic techniques, experimental models, and therapeutic approaches to better understand and manage these debilitating conditions. This Special Issue, "Molecular Issue in Optic Neuropathy", aims to highlight groundbreaking developments in the field, with a particular focus on the molecular mechanisms underlying disease pathogenesis, cutting-edge model systems, and emerging treatment strategies. By deepening our molecular insights into optic neuropathies, this issue seeks to inspire the development of more effective interventions for patients worldwide. This Special Issue is supervised by Prof. Dr. Nitza Goldenberg-Cohen and assisted by Dr. Alon Zahavi (Tel Aviv University).

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
