

Special Issue

Bone Growth and Osteoporosis

Message from the Guest Editor

Dear colleagues,

This Special Issue will focus on new treatment strategies to prevent conditions involving poor bone health, such as osteoporosis and growth retardation as a result of either drug(s) or diseases like cancer, inflammation, diabetes and neuromuscular disorders. The use of new concepts (invasive or non-invasive) or signaling cascades to positively regulate bone health will advance the field towards new treatment strategies with potential application in the clinic.

The sub-topics of this Special Issue are

- Bone growth and osteoporosis
- Bone health in cancer
- Inflammation and bone
- Diabetes/kidney and bone
- Bone health in neuromuscular disorders
- Glucocorticoids, bisphosphonates, biologics, molecules and bone
- Mechanical stress and bone
- New technologies in bone health
