Selected Papers from the 13th International Conference on Carbonic Anhydrases and Other Research

Message from the Guest Editors

The “13th International Conference on Carbonic Anhydrases” will be held in Seville, Spain, on 2nd–4th April 2025. The conference is being co-organized by the Faculty of Chemistry at the University of Seville, the NEUOFARBA Department of Florence University and the Istituto di Biostrutture e Bioimmagini-CNR in Naples. The symposium will bring together world-renowned scientists and will be a great opportunity to demonstrate the latest advances in carbonic anhydrases, including molecular biology, the design of inhibitors and activators, applications in diverse medical fields, and future trends. This meeting will provide a framework for the gathering of international experts in the field, enabling the establishment of new collaborative networks, as well as the enjoyment of the beautiful and historic city of Seville. In addition to papers directly related to the presentations delivered during the conference, we invite all researchers whose work focuses on carbonic anhydrases to submit a manuscript to this Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
