

Special Issue

Bacteriophage: Molecular Ecology and Pharmacology

Message from the Guest Editor

To this special issue we are aiming to attract high-level research and review papers concerning molecular aspects of bacteriophage ecology in the broad sense of the latter term. This will include the papers on bacteriophage genomics and metagenomics in free-living or symbiotic microbial systems, mechanisms of bacteriophage host range determination, influence of bacterial physiology on interactions with viruses and other ecologically relevant research topics. The papers regarding direct phage interactions with macroorganisms, including phage pharmacokinetics issues are specially welcome.
