

Special Issue

Fungal Diseases in Crops

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to cover the research on fungal diseases in crops. We welcome manuscripts on the following subtopics, but not limited to: 1) biology of fungal pathogens towards gaining more insights into the infection process and the weak spots in the disease cycles; 2) host–pathogen interaction and plant immunity to fungal pathogens; 3) diseases caused by emerging and re-emerging fungal populations or species; 4) population diversity and adaptive evolution revealed by genomics and population genomics. Manuscripts addressing epidemiology, the impact of climate change, and novel strategies to control fungal diseases and/or mycotoxin contamination are also welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
