

Special Issue

Nano & Micro Materials in Healthcare 3.0

Message from the Guest Editor

The scope of this Special Issue will cover (but is not limited to) the application of nano- and micromaterials in the following key subject areas:

- Medicine—studies on basic, pre-clinical, translational and clinical research in drug delivery (nano/microDDS), imaging, photothermal and photodynamic therapy, theranostics, gene therapy and immunotherapy, as well as applications of nano- and micromaterials in various health-related issues, such as cancer and cardiovascular, metabolic and infectious diseases, to name a few, along with applications in vaccines and precision medicine;
- Biomaterials—such as biocompatible/degradable materials, nano/microfibers, hydrogels, composites, 2D materials, biomimetic hybrids and biopolymers;
- Tissue engineering and regenerative medicine—including scaffolds, grafts and patches, cell and tissue engineering, tissue regeneration and wound healing;
- Devices for biomedical applications—such as BioMEMS, organs/lab-on-a-chip, diagnostic devices, biosensors, wearables, microfluidics, implantable devices and nano/microrobotics.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
