Bioimaging for Advanced Explorations in Materials and Life Science

Message from the Guest Editors

The present Special Issue will focus on the innovative applications of biomaterials and the characterizations of their corresponding functions using state-of-the-art imaging techniques. The marriage of biomaterials and imaging techniques will also intrigue our investigation into the interplays of biology and materials science and may ignite the invention of advanced functional biomaterials. In this Special Issue, methods and materials for imaging-based characterization of molecular signatures that occur during cellular proliferation, differentiation, and internalization are very welcome (including but not limited to this application). Broad applications in tissue engineering, drug delivery, and nanomedicine are also invited in this Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
