The Role of Non-Coding RNAs in Female Reproduction

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue is focused on the crucial role that non-coding RNAs play in female reproduction. Non-coding RNAs regulate various processes, ranging from the earliest stages of oocyte development to the establishment and maintenance of pregnancy. Their dysregulation can be associated with both physiological and pathological conditions, comprising reproductive disorders, cancers and infertility. Their plethora of regulatory functions highlight the importance of understanding their role in reproductive biology and could lead to the development of novel therapeutics, as well as improve reproductive outcomes.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
