Recent Molecular Research in Neuroimmunology

Message from the Guest Editor

The importance of B-cells in neuroimmunology is highlighted by the role of antibodies in different immune-mediated nervous system diseases, including myasthenia gravis, autoimmune encephalitis, and multiple sclerosis (MS). Antibodies can be a marker of viral infection, such as those against Epstein–Barr virus in MS, or pathogenic, as highlighted by autoimmune encephalitis and myasthenia gravis. In this Special Issue, we would like to highlight the importance of B-cell function and antibodies in neuroimmunology, particularly in progressive MS. Suitable topics include but are not limited to MS, progressive MS antibodies, B-cell function, myasthenia gravis, and autoimmune encephalitis.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
