Molecular Insight into Dentistry and Craniofacial Surgery: Celebrating the 110th Anniversary of Dentistry in Italy

Message from the Guest Editor

In the last 100 years, dentistry has broadened its scope due to the increase in research, and numerous innovations in technology and in the digital and molecular sciences. The applications of new materials and techniques can lead to significant advances in the main dental branches, such as restorative dentistry, prosthodontics, oral surgery, implantology, pediatric dentistry, orthodontics, and temporomandibular disorder patients. In this Special Issue, we would like to focus on the most recent and significant innovations in the dental field, particularly research at a molecular research level. Authors that have conducted studies on these themes are welcome to submit original research articles, reviews and short communications.
